Questions for the Week of Aug. 28

1. What's something you were initially reluctant to attempt, but turned out well when you decided to try it out?
2. Read Revelation 1:3 aloud. Many people think of the Book of Revelation as weird, scary, or confusing. Or that it's about making charts and timelines.
3. How has our study shown that it is written to be a blessing to the followers of Jesus? How has it specifically been a blessing to you?
4. God's presence and direction in our lives is both awe-inspiring and sometimes unsettling (like thunder) and at the same time brings peace and beauty (like a harp playing softly). God both stretches us and reassures us. How have you experienced those twin-truths in your life? Give an example.
5. Many people are uncomfortable or confused about the biblical teaching on God's wrath against sin and evil. But how does God's committed and steady opposition to evil actually bring comfort to suffering and persecuted believers? What kind of a world and eternity would we live in if evil were never judged and put to an end?
6. The Book of Revelation has been called the book of re-evaluation. How does Revelation help us to take inventory of different areas of our lives? What's a specific area of your life than you can re-evaluate in light of God's truth and eternity?
7. In what ways does this passage (and all of Revelation) motivate you to share the good news of Jesus to people who do not yet know Christ? With the One Life whom God has placed in your path?
